

DR. CHRIS SANFORD, M.D., M.P.H., D.T.M.&H.

Meet Doctor Travel

Dr. Chris Sanford is a family medicine physician with a love of travel and a passion for helping others to stay healthy abroad.

Through his entertaining videos & podcasts, blogs, and books, he helps travelers demystify the complexities of travel and tropical medicine so you can visit anywhere from the lush jungles of South America to the Sahara desert, all in good health.

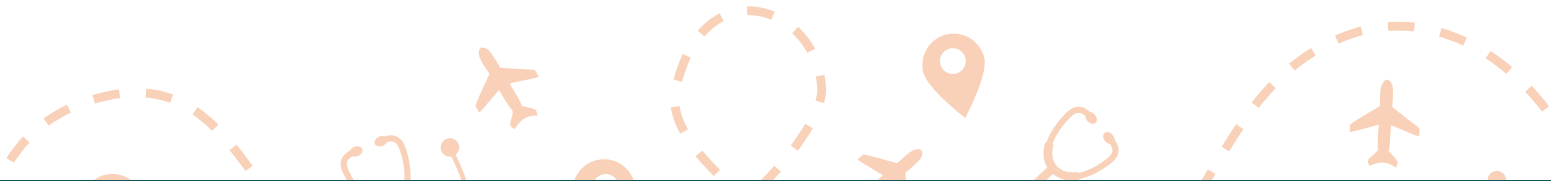

Doctor Travel is a prolific author and editor of books on travel medicine. He's worked in clinical settings in the Peruvian Amazon, Uganda, and Ethiopia.

For 15 years he served as a Medical Officer on a U.S. federal disaster response team. His deployments included New Orleans following Hurricane Katrina in 2005 and Port-au-Prince, Haiti, after the 2010 earthquake.

When he's not traveling, Doctor Travel is based in Seattle where he teaches at the University of Washington's Departments of Family Medicine and Global Health.

Doctor Travel has attended many-too many?- institutions of higher learning.

- 1975-77 ● El Camino College, Torrance, CA.
No degree
- 1978-80 ● University of California, Santa Barbara, CA.
B.A., Psychology
- 1981-85 ● University of California, San Diego, CA.
M.D.
- 1985-88 ● Stanford University, Family Medicine Residency Program, San Jose Medical Center (now Stanford-O'Connor Family Medicine Residency), San Jose CA.
- 2000 ● Instituto de Medicina Tropical Alexander Von Humboldt, Universidad Peruana Cayetano Heredia, Gorgas Course in Clinical Tropical Medicine, Lima, Peru.
D.T.M.& H. (Diploma in Tropical Medicine & Hygiene)
- 2004-5 ● Harvard School of Public Health, Boston MA.
M.P.H., International Health

Media Contact

Alana Elias Kornfeld
Chief Communications Officer

press@doctortravel.com
(516) 369-3132

www.doctortravel.com | @DoctorTravelChris

